

I am sitting here watching the 49er game. The Rams were in a quandary – they needed at least 10 yards to make their third down. They threw the ball, the man caught it right in front of two 49ers and he had to get past them to make his down. It did not look like he could do it, but he put his head down and ran. He moved the two players, pushing them across the line; others from the 49ers came to push him back. Soon all the players were there fighting to get the ball where they wanted it.

We as a nation are finding ourselves catching the ball with two players in front of us. We Christians believe we have a mandate to call our country to morality and holiness. But what will we do? Will we give up and say there is no way we can get around the opposition? Or will we keep running, knowing victory is on the other side? Will we come to the aid of our brethren and give them the help to push the enemy back, or will we sit on the sidelines? Come on brethren – we must get up and back into the fight. Our future depends on us pulling together!
